ORDER

The Court, having heard the condemnation petition in this case and having reviewed the pleadings, finds that it has jurisdiction and that It's Our Wild Nature ("IOWN"), through its predecessor-in-interest, has been given proper notice of the filing by the City of Columbia ("the City") of the Petition and Amended Petition.

The Court further finds as follows:

1. At the outset, the Court notes that its role in this case is not to weigh the relative merits of a trail versus a natural area or determine which one better advances the public good. The question before the Court is not whether trails are superior to natural areas or natural areas are superior to trails.
2. Rather, the Court's inquiry is limited to determining whether the City has met all of the requirements necessary to exercise the power of condemnation and acted in good faith. In this case, the Court finds that the City has satisfied the requirements and acted in good faith and may exercise its power of condemnation.

3. Defendant IOWN, a Missouri nonprofit corporation, is the record owner in fee simple absolute of a tract of land located in Columbia, Boone County, Missouri, described in paragraph 2 of the Amended Petition in Condemnation.

4. The City seeks to take and acquire for the purposes described in the Amended Petition a permanent scenic conservation bikeway/walkway easement through, over, under, upon and across the tract of land owned by IOWN. The easements which the City seeks to condemn and acquire across the land owned by IOWN are described in Exhibit A to the Amended Petition. A copy of Exhibit A is attached to and incorporated in this Order.

5. The Court finds that the use for which the City seeks the permanent easements is for the public benefit, use and convenience, and the City is entitled to acquire these easements for the purposes set forth in the Amended Petition. The City is entitled to have ascertained and assessed damages, if any, which IOWN as owner of the tract of land may sustain because of the taking and acquisition of the easements by the City.

6. The City has given IOWN's predecessor proper information, notices and offer in accordance with the provisions of Section 523.250 and Section 523.253 RSMo, and IOWN as successor is subject to those notices.

7. The City, through its agents, attempted, before the filing of the Petition, to purchase the easements from IOWN's predecessor, but the City and IOWN's predecessor were unable to agree upon the proper compensation to be paid, and IOWN has subsequently refused to grant the City the easements.

8. The Court does not find that the City failed to negotiate in good faith or that the City failed to establish "necessity."

9. A governmental entity's determination of "necessity" is not subject to judicial review absent fraud, bad faith or an unwarranted abuse of discretion. Mapco, Inc. v. Williams, 581 S.W.2d 402, 405 (Mo. App. 1979). Here, evidence has been adduced to establish the necessity of the easement rights sought. Whether another path or route would have been preferable for a walkway does not demonstrate bad faith or an unwarranted abuse of discretion by the City. In addition, the Court finds that the absence in the easements of the sewer line access described in the City's offer letter does not rise to the level of bad faith – an offer letter, by definition, contemplates the possibility of subsequent negotiation and modification.

10. The Court further finds that the terms in the easements are not ambiguous or incapable of definition, and finds that the scope of the easements is authorized by the City's ordinance. The City's authorizing ordinance authorizes the City to "acquire property" and "obtain, execute and record all deeds and other instruments necessary" for acquisition, and includes no words of limitation. Given this relatively broad legislative authority, it follows that easement rights such as "conservation purposes," "appurtenances," "storm water and erosion control" and "preservation as open green space and/or woodland" are not an expansion of the authority granted by the ordinance – they are the means of implementing the ordinance consistent with the authority and purpose of the ordinance. The scope of the taking is not greater than the legislative determination. While the Court is sensitive to the potential for government to abuse the power of eminent domain, the Court also notes that it is not entitled to substitute its judgment for the City's legislative determination that a bikeway/walkway is a necessary or legitimate public purpose and that, in this case, there are certain easement rights that are necessary to accomplish that purpose.

11. Finally, to the extent relevant, the Court finds that 42 U.S.C. Section 4651 is an expression of policy that does not create an additional prerequisite to condemnation. See also City of Columbia v. Baurichter, 713 S.W.2d 263, 267 (Mo. 1986) (satisfaction of state statute satisfied federal requirements).

For the foregoing reasons, the Court orders that the land and premises owned by IOWN described in paragraph 2 of the City's Petition and Amended Petition is condemned for the easements as set forth in Exhibit A to the Amended Petition, upon and across the real estate, and the City is hereby granted the easements as described in Exhibit A upon and across the real estate owned by IOWN for the purposes and subject to the conditions set forth in the City's Petition and Amended Petition.

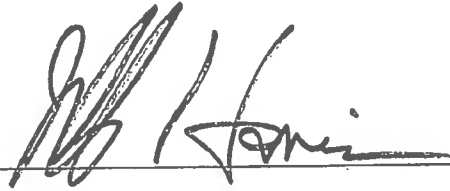

The Court does not appoint Commissioners at this time to ascertain, assess and award damages, if any, which IOWN as owner of the real estate shall sustain by reason of the condemnation ordered. The Court orders the parties to confer regarding the Commissioners to be appointed and to jointly submit to the Court the names of five individuals whom the parties agree may serve as Commissioners. The parties shall submit the names of the five potential Commissioners and a proposed order of appointment by Casenet filing by January 31, 2019. The Court will appoint Commissioners from the list of the five individuals.

It is further ordered that the City shall have the right to take possession of the easements for the uses and purposes immediately upon the filing of the Commissioners' report and the payment into Court of any damages awarded by the Commissioners in their report.

It is further ordered that the Clerk of the Circuit Court of Boone County, Missouri, is directed to file one copy of the report in her office and record the same in the proper book and record of the Court and shall deliver the other copy of the report duly certified to the Recorder of Deeds of Boone County, Missouri, as required by law and that the Clerk shall cause a copy of this Order to be delivered to each of the Commissioners after they have been appointed.
